Learning and Leisure

Each day begins with devotions followed by a morning of learning from a faculty of biblical scholars and theologians who foster an intellectually creative and challenging atmosphere for conversation. Spouses and partners are welcome to participate.

Afternoons are free for hiking, sightseeing, horseback riding, napping, or simply enjoying the beauty of the Rocky Mountains. Nearby Estes Park, Colorado, offers golfing, shopping, swimming, and other diversions.

Evenings offer a variety of options including nightly gathering under the "chili lights" for chilling and shooting the breeze. Children and teens are welcome at all evening programs and events.

Young-uns

While the adults are in lectures, children and teens (4-18yrs) will participate in biblically-based programming. They will be establishing relationships through team building experiences that incorporates music, arts and crafts, recreation, and environmental awareness. Childcare is available for children ages 3 and under.

Housing Options

LODGE Meeker Park Lodge is a rustic, mountain lodge. The main floor offers a fireplace and small library. The second floor, accessible by a winding staircase, offers a limited number of basic sleeping rooms and shared central bathroom and two rooms that are ensuite. No cooking facilities are available in the lodge. Breakfast and lunch are available for purchase.

CABINS Individual cabins are available. They include a fully equipped kitchen, private bath, with bedding, linens, and towels provided. Cabins can accommodate from 2 to 9 people.

CAMPING Camp sites are available at Olive Ridge Campground which is located within the Roosevelt National Forest as well as other campgrounds in the Estes Park area. Individuals who desire to camp should reserve their own campsite.

Continuing Education: Ten Days of Learning

Professor Ann Fritschel

"Stewardship for the Next Generation"

The Rev. Dr. Ann Fritschel, a Wartburg Seminary graduate, celebrated her 30th anniversary of ordination in 2016. After serving churches in Dickinson, Mohall and Hamerly N.D., she got her Ph.D. from Emory University and joined the Wartburg Faculty in 1996. With a strong interest and passion in rural ministry, she also serves as the Director of the Center for Theology and Land. Another passion of hers is a holistic understanding of stewardship. She enjoys traveling, reading and needlepoint.

Rev. Dr. Carmelo Santos

"Thinking about God in the Age of Brain Science: Musings for a Critical Liberation Theology of the Brain"

The Rev. Dr. Carmelo Santos is a professorial lecturer at Georgetown University and Senior Pastor of Hope Lutheran Church, a congregation of the Metropolitan Washington D.C. Synod (ELCA). He specializes on the dialogue between Science and Theology, specifically between the Brain and Cognitive Sciences and Theological Anthropology and Pneumatology. He also teaches in the areas of Liberation, Decolonial and Latin American Lutheran theologies. He received his M.Div., Th.M. and Ph.D. from the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, where he wrote his dissertation, Symptoms of God's Spirit? A Dialogue Between Pneumatology and the Cognitive Sciences, under the supervision of Antje Jackelén, the current archbishop of the church of Sweden. As a pastor, Carmelo is actively involved in the immigrants rights movement and was invited last year to speak at the U.S. Senate as expert witness on the theological and ethical reasons for the opposition of faith communities to the separation of children from their parents as part of the U.S. Immigration policy. He just finished a term serving as the editor of the journal of Lutheran Ethics and Director of the ELCA Theological Roundtable. Carmelo lives in Arlington, VA where he shares his life with his wife, Jennifer, their two kids, their dog and fish.

Bishop Michael Burk

"Musings of a Bishop Embarking on His Last Year of Service"

The Rev. Michael L. Burk is bishop of the Southeastern Iowa Synod of the ELCA. He is a graduate of Wartburg College, Wartburg Theological Seminary (M.Div.), and the University of Iowa (MA and Ph.D. in American Studies). Prior to his election in 2008, he served as the ELCA Executive for Worship and Liturgical Resources. He was granted an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree by Wartburg Theological Seminary in recognition of his evangelical leadership. Bishop Burk contributes to the ELCA's advocacy efforts on matters related to hunger and poverty and he has served as the Vice Chair of the ELCA Conference of Bishops.
